

International Policy Action Lab with Peking University

Learn the evidence-based approach of conducting international policy research from top scholars at Peking University and the University of Chicago in five weeks.

You will learn to:

- Understand econometric modeling tools frequently used in empirical economic research
- Collaborate on a capstone research project, applying the skills taught in the program to a real-world data set on a current topic in international policy

Features & Schedule

- ✓ Summer 2022
- ✓ Five-week, part-time program
- ✓ Combination of synchronous and asynchronous lectures
- ✓ Live office hours with faculty and graduate teaching fellows
- ✓ Limited experience required

FACULTY

Austin Wright is Assistant Professor at the University of Chicago Harris School of Public Policy and a faculty affiliate of The Pearson Institute for the Study and Resolution of Global Conflicts. His research leverages microlevel data to study the political economy of conflict and crime in Afghanistan, Colombia, Indonesia, and Iraq. Wright's work is supported by the National Science Foundation, Niehaus Center for Global Governance, The Asia Foundation, and the World Bank.

Xuezheng Qin is Professor and Deputy Dean at Peking University School of Economics, and Director of the Peking University Research Center for Market Economy. Dr. Qin's primary research interests include health economics, economics of human capital, and applied econometrics.

Learn more about this program, including dates, fees, and application deadlines, at harris.uchicago.edu/IPAL